Mother keeps hope alive that Nathan will come home

Murder charges laid.

Boy 'wasn't involved in this,' pleads Jen O'Brien

Jen and Rod O'Brien embraced as dozens of their close friends and neighbours released green balloons into the sky Tuesday evening, a symbol of lingering hope that their young son Nathan would turn up.

Earlier in the day, police formally charged Douglas Garland in the presumed killings of the five-year-old and his grandparents, Alvin and Kathryn Liknes.

Jen, however, told Metro the police haven't shared the evidence that has led them to believe the three victims are dead. The trio went missing June 29.

"They won't tell us, but we do know that it's not time for us to lose hope," Jen said. "I can't and I won't until we know for sure."

The O'Briens gathered at a park near their Cougar Ridge home for the balloon display. Thousands of others around Calgary and in other cities across the country had pledged to do the same in their own neighbourhoods.

"I'm so hopeful that my little boy's going to come home," Jen said. "I hope and pray that anybody that was involved actually speaks up and has it in their hearts because Nathan wasn't involved in this."

Police haven't identified a motive in the presumed killings, but Chief Rick Hanson did indicate Monday that while the Liknes couple murders may have been premeditated, Nathan's was Hanson felt that the laying of charges had "taken (the) hope away from the family" that their loved ones would be found alive.

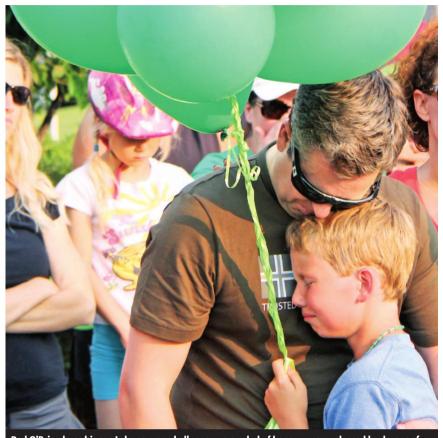

But like Nathan's mother, longtime caregiver Negin Eslami said she would hold out hope until undeniable proof was shown to her that the youngster was gone.

"They are such a loving family," she said of the O'Briens. "(Nathan) was such a loving angel."

As people gathered in Cougar Ridge, there were reports that more than 100 volunteers had gathered in Airdrie to perform a coordinated search in hopes of providing the family closure

Douglas Garland

Accused is smart but has mental issues, criminal past: Records

Douglas Robert Garland's appearance is unassuming — a balding, 54-year-old man with glasses and an average build. Most people would pass him on the street without a second look

But for more than a week, he has been at the centre of a Calgary police probe into the mysterious disappearance of Alvin and Kathryn Liknes and their grandson, five-year-old Nathan O'Brien.

Late Monday, he was charged with their murders.

Police have said Garland is connected to the Liknes family — his sister is in a relationship with a relative.

There have also been reports that Garland and Alvin Liknes had a business relationship.

What else is known about Garland has come from court records and parole documents.

They reveal an intelligent person, but someone who struggled with mental problems that led, at least in part, to a rather lengthy criminal record.

His convictions, however, were for non-violent offences. He had faced weapons and assault charges in 1980s and 1990s, but they were dropped.

Court documents show Garland was smart enough to get into medical school, evade police on drug charges for several years, get a job working in a laboratory without proper credentials, and win a tax-court case against the federal government acting as his own

'Army of support' is growing for families

Community mourns, expresses hope. Trust fund set up in honour of Nathan O'Brien, 5

JEREMY NOLAIS & KEN VAN DE WALLE

Metro

Messages of condolence poured in and thousands of balloons were released into the sky Tuesday as Calgary continued to mourn the loss of a young boy and his grandparents.

Police presume Nathan O'Brien, grandfather Alvin Liknes and grandmother Kathryn Liknes were murdered, although their bodies haven't been recovered.

Nathan's parents said Tuesday, however, that they wouldn't give up hope of their little boy returning home until his body had been found.

Out front of the Parkhill home where the Likneses lived and were last seen June 29, a memorial made up of flowers, stuffed animals and handwritten messages continued to grow.

Brenda Palmer has no personal ties to the victims' families, but stopped by to leave flowers.

"I felt I needed to do that," she said afterward. "I'm really feeling for Rod and Jen (O'Brien, Nathan's parents) and their family right now, and I can't believe that this happened."

Elsewhere, another stranger, Katie Gregg, organized an "army of support" that saw thousands take a moment at 8 p.m. to release green balloons into the air.

More than 9,000 people had indicated they would take part, prompting Gregg to turn to Calgary International Airport and NAV Canada to make sure there were no risks posed to airplanes operating in the area.

"This is for support, not to hurt people," Gregg said. "We all want to support them. We all want to hug them but we can't."

Airdrie resident Daniel Keating planned to take part in the balloon release and said he knew people who would do the same in Edmonton and as far away as Nova Scotia. He said his aim was to let family members of victims know "the whole community is supporting them."

A trust fund was set up in honour of Nathan O'Brien through ATB Financial.

"It facilitates people who want to make some kind of a contribution," said Dave Mowat, the organization's president and chief executive. "It's not something we necessarily promote, we just try and be a conduit to make a safe place where if people want to make a contribution, they can."

Murder charges

Airdrie resident Douglas Garland, 54, was formally charged with two counts of first-degree murder in relation to the presumed deaths of Alvin and Kathryn Liknes and one count of second-degree murder in connection with the presumed death of Nathan O'Brien.

 Garland is due to first appear in court Wednesday. Check back at metronews.ca/news/ calgary for updates.

Catch-22. Fast-tracking building could push city past debt-service limits

Fast-tracking additional development projects in north Calgary could push the city beyond debt-servicing limits, members of city council heard Tuesday.

After council approved one "construction finance agreement" (CFA) in June to accelerate a residential development in northeast Calgary, city staff now say it may not be possible to take on other such agreements, due to the short-term debt they add to city ledgers.

Developers have recently come to the city offering to pony up more of their own cash to cover infrastructure costs for things like water and sewer lines in new suburbs in order to speed up two major projects in the Keystone Hills

But Eric Sawyer, Calgary's chief financial officer, said entering into a CFA "puts an immediate obligation" on Bylaw officers want to speak with whomever owns a pair of "pit bull-type" animals responsible for mauling a poodle to death in northeast Calgary.

City officials say a woman was walking her poodle on Templehill Drive N.E. at about 9:30 a.m. on July 12 when another woman approached with her two hulking canines.

"One of the large dogs grabbed the poodle, biting and shaking it," said Alvin Murray, north operations manager for Animal and Bylaw Services.

The person walking the attacking dog is described by the city as a Caucasian woman between 30 and 40 years old, with a petite build, blond hair, possibly named Sarah. metro

Boards to building

Seven schools. CBE. Catholic boards to take reins of projects dogged by P3 collapse

JEREMY NOLAIS

The province has turned over construction rights on seven planned Calgary schools facing delays to local boards, a move that's likely to spark renewed hope among suburban parents that the much-needed facilities will open on time.

The Calgary Board of Education issued requests for proposals for some of the schools last week, and Parker Hogan, press secretary for Alberta Infrastructure, confirmed the change of plans to Metro in an interview.

The seven schools — five CBE sites and two for students with the Calgary Catholic School District - will add about 5,400 student spaces, as both organizations are swarmed by unprecedented student growth in the city's far-reaching neighbourhoods.

Former premier Alison Redford had pledged to open the schools and others around the province by the fall of 2016, but infrastructure officials announced last month that a lone bid under the public-private-partnership approach had come in $14 million over projected costs for a more traditional design-build construction process.

After the news down, both Calgary boards expressed interest in tackling construction of their facilities internally — the CBE had five sites affected by the delay, while the Catholic district

"The school showed that they had the appropriate expertise and competency, so we allowed them to do that," Hogan said.

The CBE specifically had already taken control of constructing a half-dozen newschool projects elsewhere in the city and intends to have doors open on those sites in 2016.

Amber Stewart, a board trustee representing Calgary's flourishing deep-south neighbourhoods, said taking reins on construction could provide "the option to possibly get these schools on track."

But she cautioned, "I'm not certain how far back these (schools) have been set as a result of how they've been handled to this point."

Over the weekend, Stewart said she attended a pancake breakfast in New Brighton, one of the communities awaiting a K-4 school, and couldn't help but notice the "throngs of families," in attendance.

"You look around and see that it wouldn't be that hard to fill an elementary school," Stewart said.

Hogan said the province will still oversee construction of an eighth new-school project in Calgary, a replacement site for the regional Francophone board in the Martindale community.

Schools that will see construction managed locally:

CBE
Copperfield: Kindergarten to grade 4, 600 students
Evanston: Kindergarten to grade 4, 600 students
New Brighton: Kindergarten to grade 4, 600 students
Royal Oak/Rocky Ridge:
Grades 5 to 9, 900 students
Saddle Ridge: Grades 5 to 9, 900 students

CCSD
 Auburn Bay: Kindergarten to grade 9, 900 students

Ring Road

Calgary to be paid back for sewer line relocation

Calgary is set to spend $17.4 million to relocate a storm sewer line in order to make way for the southwest ring road but expects to get the full amount back from the province.

Members of the priorities and finance committee approved adding that amount to the city's capital budget Tuesday.

The provincial government needs the project completed by June 2016 in order to meet its own timelines for the roadway construction and "has committed to finance all costs related to the relocation of this storm infrastructure," according to a city report.

Talisman Centre

Flood repairs to cost another $3M

Repairing flood damage at the city-partnered Talisman Centre will cost $3 million more than initially anticipated, but the city expects to recoup that cost from insurance.

Calgary had already approved a $12-million repair budget for the recreational facility but the additional spending is now required "as a result of a change in the scope of the estimated work due to the need for the replacement of the chilled water system, overhead ducts, lower level restoration, and additional engineering costs," according to a city report.

The city expects the additional costs "will be reimbursed through insurance coverage." METRO

World powers and Iran still face significant gaps in their negotiations to curb Tehran's nuclear program, foreign ministers said Tuesday while forging ahead with efforts to secure a deal that could finally bridge a decades-long diplomatic chasm between the Islamic republic and the Sunday's deadline for an agreement could be extended, but that issue is controversial, too. An extension of the international negotiations would open U.S. President Barack Obama to criticism that he's allowing Iran to stall and seek sanctions relief while moving forward on its nuclear program. And without an accord on the nuclear talks, the U.S. risks losing opportunities to negotiate with Iran on other pressing regional issues, including sectarian fighting in Syria and Iraq that is threatening to rip apart the Mideast.

Aside from persuading

Iran, Obama, seeking an elusive foreign-policy victory, must also convince a suspicious Congress and reluctant Arab allies of the long-term benefits of securing a deal.

Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif suggested it was likely that the talks - taking place in Vienna — would continue beyond a Sunday deadline and into a six-month extension.

Pistorius went with a cousin to a trendy Johannesburg nightclub on Saturday, where he was accosted by a man who aggressively questioned him about his murder trial, a family spokeswoman said.

The man gave a different version, saying the doubleamputee runner was drunk, insulted his friends and the family of President Jacob Zuma and poked him in the chest, according to Johannesburg's Star newspaper.

Regardless of who started the argument, the weekend episode focuses fresh attention on the disputed character of Pistorius, a globally recognized athlete who is on trial for murder after he fatally shot girlfriend Reeva Steenkamp through a closed toilet door on Feb. 14, 2013. Hospitals overwhelmed. A suicide bomber blew up a car packed with explosives near a busy market and a mosque in eastern Afghanistan on Tuesday, killing at least 89 people in the deadliest insurgent attack on civilians since the 2001 U.S.led invasion.

Gen. Mohammad Zahir

Azimi gave the death toll and said more than 40 other people were wounded. Airstrike fells apartment building

Snizhne, east Ukraine.

Unclear who is at fault for at least 11 deaths after attack in Donetsk

An airstrike in eastern Ukraine sent an apartment building crumpling to the ground Tuesday, killing at least 11 people and adding to the steadily mounting civilian death toll from the fighting between government forces and pro-Russian insurgents.

Rebels pinned the attack on the Ukrainian air force. The government swiftly denied blame but was not immediately able to offer an alternative explanation.

The bombing in the rebelheld town of Snizhne, part of the Donestk region, demonstrated how airstrikes and heavy rocket fire are becoming increasingly common as the conflict drags into its fourth month. The attack comes one day after a Ukrainian military transport plane was shot down in disputed circumstances.

The devastation in Snizhne bore signs of a strike by several missiles and left only a mountain of smoking debris. The four-storey apartment block appeared to have been hit in two separate spots, causing the collapse of several tiers. A nearby house was also destroyed.

Resident Igor Chernetsov lost his wife in the attack. "I heard an explosion and suddenly I was thrown out of the apartment, out of the fourth floor," said Chernetsov, his head swathed in a bandage. "I woke up covered in dust and had no idea what had happened."

Health officials in the Donetsk region provided the number of dead. Rescue workers pulled a small child with broken legs alive from the rubble as grieving residents sifted for belongings. An Associated Press reporter counted six large impact craters.

Dmitry Tymchuk, a military analyst who co-ordinates closely with Ukraine's Defence Ministry, said that since rebels are unlikely to have any planes capable of conducting the bombing, there could only be one explanation.

"Only Russian aviation could have performed the airstrike on Snizhne," he wrote on his Facebook account.

The Defence Ministry stopped short of that claim but insisted the bombing could not have been carried out by the air force as none of its planes were on sorties at the time of the strike.

Security Council spokesman Andrei Lysenko called the incident a "cynical and bloody provocation" aimed at discrediting the armed forces.

Sergei, a rebel commander at the scene who declined to give his surname, said locals witnessed Ukrainian involvement. "Many local citizens saw the plane that dropped the bomb — it had Ukrainian markings," he said.

Bloodshed continues

Exact death toll unclear

No reliable official recent death toll has been produced, but hundreds of civilians are believed to have been killed so far in the conflict. Authorities said Tuesday that 258 servicemen have been killed in fighting and 922 injured.

Representatives for the separatist Luhansk People's Republic said that 12 more civilians were killed Monday evening in the eastern city of Luhansk following rocket attacks and airstrikes. It was not immediately possible to verify those claims.

In the last two weeks, the government has halved the territory in eastern Ukraine held by pro-Russia separatists, who have been forced back into the cities of Luhansk and Donetsk. Many in the armed insurgency are known to be Russian nationals.

Israel resumes bombings in Gaza after Hamas rejects ceasefire plan

Israel resumed its heavy bombardment of Gaza on Tuesday and warned that Hamas "would pay the price" after the Islamic militant group rejected an Egyptian truce plan and instead unleashed more rocket barrages at the Middle Eastern state Rocket fire from Gaza killed an Israeli man Tuesday, the first Israeli fatality in eight days of fighting. In Gaza, 197 people have been killed and close to 1,500 wounded, Palestinian officials said, making it the deadliest Israel-Hamas confrontation in just over five years.

Hamas officials rejected the current Egyptian plan on Tuesday, noting they weren't consulted by Cairo. Some portrayed the truce offer as an ultimatum presented to Hamas by Israel and Egypt.

The officials said the Egyptian plan offered no tangible achievements, particularly on easing the border blockade that has been enforced by Israel and Egypt to varying degrees since 2007. The Egyptian proposal, initially accepted by Israel, had been the first attempt to end the fighting but unraveled in less than a day. Hamas does not consider Egypt's current rulers — who deposed a Hamasfriendly government in Cairo a year ago — to be fair brokers.

In an evening address aired live on TV, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said that after Hamas' rejection of the truce, Israel had "no choice" but to respond more forcefully.

"Hamas chose to continue fighting and will pay the price for that decision," he said. "When there is no ceasefire, our answer is fire."

Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Jose Antonio Vargas, a Philippines-born immigration activist who has lived in the U.S. illegally since he was a child, was released by U.S. Border Patrol agents on Tuesday after they detained him at a Texas airport.

Border Patrol spokesman Omar Zamora said Vargas was stopped going through security at the airport in McAllen, just across from the Mexico border. A spokeswoman for Define American, Vargas' advocacy group, confirmed his release Tuesday afternoon.

It is common for the Border Patrol to release people on their own recognizances, with notices to appear in court later. With such notices, people can generally travel throughout the U.S. without being detained again.

Vargas had been visiting the border city for several days as part of a vigil to highlight the plight of unaccompanied immigrant children coming into the U.S. illegally

Vargas went public about his immigration status in a 2011 piece for the New York Times Magazine, revealing that he had been living in the U.S. illegally since he was brought from the Philippines as a child to live with his grandparents. He also directed a 2013 documentary called Documented.

Record breaker? Teen may be youngest to fly around the world solo

A U.S. teen may have become the youngest person to fly solo around the world.

Matt Guthmiller, 19, completed the more-than-46,670-kilometre journey in a single-engine airplane Monday night when he touched down in California.

Guthmiller made about two dozen stops in 14 countries during the journey that began May 31, according to his mother Shirley, who greeted her son after his 16-hour final-leg flight from Hawaii.

Guthmiller was 16 when he got his pilot's licence.

Guthmiller's parents said he's sending documentation to Guinness World Records, which must confirm that he broke the record.

Google sees market for 'smart' contact lens

A smart contact lens is shown in this image released by Google in January. Swiss drug developer Novartis will team with technology giant Google to develop a "smart" contact lens that could improve some eye conditions or help diabetics manage their disease. Terms of the agreement between the companies were not detailed in a statement released Tuesday by Novartis. The drug maker said its Alcon eye-care division will license Google technology and work with a team from Google to develop a lens that uses microchips and miniaturized electronics. Novartis is focused on developing a contact lens that can provide a continuous measurement of glucose levels in diabetic patients by measuring tear fluid. The CANADIAN PRESS

Home sales were hot as the weather in June

Canadian home sales heated up in June to their best pace since March 2010 after a sluggish start to the year due to the frigid winter and late spring.

The Canadian Real Estate Association said Tuesday that sales through its Multiple Listings Service in June were up 0.8 per cent from May, as sales were up in about half of the markets tracked last month, with the Vancouver region and Montreal leading the way.

Compared with a year ago, sales were 11.2 per cent higher, led by Vancouver, the Fraser Valley, Calgary, Toronto and Hamilton-Burlington.

The national average sale price was up 6.9 per cent from June 2013 at $413,215.

"At least some of the recent burst in new supply reflects the slow start to the year, when a harsh winter caused many sellers to delay listing their home in many parts of the country," CREA chief economist Gregory Klump said in a statement.

WORLD'S OLDEST MAN OUTLIVES TO TELL

Some of us stop having birthdays after we turn 29.

Still, somehow the government tracks us down when we're 65 and sends us a paltry stipend.

Too bad. You're old, ha ha. Here's 500 bucks a month. Don't spend it all in one

Sadly, in our youth-obsessed age, the elderly get no respect. Of course, being only 29, I have no first-hand experience of the

There is one way to get the respect you deserve: just wait everybody out until, like José Aguinelo dos Santos, you wake up one morning as The World's Oldest Man.

Then they respect. They come from miles around to ask you how you managed to survive until 126, outlasting the former Jeanne Calment, that young French girl who gave up the ghost at 122 in 1997.

Paul Sullivan metronews.ca

And if you're José, the formula is pretty simple. "The truth is," he told an inquiring reporter, "you keep getting older."

It helps, apparently, to smoke a pack of cigarettes a day for the last 50 years, to sing and tell jokes and eat rice and beans. Oh, and avoid bathing at all costs.

When you're 126, who's going to say you smell like old cheese? And you can just pretend not to hear them.

José was allegedly born on July 7, 1888, on the same day as Lawrence of Arabia — who may have had a more exciting life, but look who's

The son of an African slave - he can't remember his mother's name - José was born two months after slavery was abolished in Brazil. He spent most of his life working on a coffee plantation, so you have to wonder if emancipation made much difference. José got his first birth certificate this month after being interviewed by experts. He was able to accurately describe the slave compound of his birth, which allowed the experts to assign his age, although his old folks' home is hoping to have him carbon 14-dated to make sure.

When you're 126, it's kind of like being a petrified tree. But just look at what this guy has lived through. The year he was born was the year of Jack the Ripper. He was 26 at the outset of World War I and 53 when World War II ended. He was 62 the last time Brazil hosted the World Cup. That was in 1950. He was a pensioner more than half a century ago.

Memo to self: call financial adviser re: outliving retirement capital.

If you're José, you could look at it this way: every minute could be your last.

Or you could look at it this way: every minute is a bonus. As fellow centenarian George Burns liked to say, "If you live to be one hundred, you've got it made. Very few people die past that age.

So happy Birthday to José, the last man standing (from on or before July 7, 1888).

Elvis tribute artists go for reverence, not mockery

The white-suited, chest hairbaring, blue contact-wearing men posing with fans outside the showroom of the former Las Vegas Hilton don't want to be called Elvis impersonators.

The correct term is Elvis tribute artist — or ETA for short — to distinguish their studied performances from the dime-a-dozen characters trolling the strip.

"It's not a gag," explained Jason Sherry, producer of this weekend's Elvis Festival in Las Vegas, one of several sanctioned by Presley's estate that lead up to Elvis Week in Memphis, Tenn., in August. "It doesn't mean we don't enjoy it. But we're not making a mockery

Some three dozen ETAs took their gyrating hips and curled lips to the stage over the weekend to see who could do the most convincing portrayal.

Prizes included $2,500 in cash for the top performer and a chance to represent Las Vegas in the Ultimate Elvis Tribute Artist competition during Elvis Week. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Love me long time

Events help Presley's estate cultivate a fan base decades after radio stations stopped playing Love Me Tender.

Organizers have tweaked the festival to keep up with the changing demographics. For example, they ditched sock hops and replaced them with an after-hours party more familiar to millennials.

Sex Tape spawn of getting it on

Sexcapades. Hitting record before hitting the sack is a popular if not always private pastime

FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

For many people, especially those who troll around in the more unsavoury corners of the Internet, the first exposure to celebs like Paris Hilton and Kim Kardashian came from that most modern form of celebrity introduction: the sex tape.

Paris and Kim's videoed sexcapades weren't the first tapes to become public — in 1988 Rob Lowe was embarrassed when VHS images of him and two women popped up on the news — and they weren't the last

This week in Sex Tape, Jason Segel and Cameron Diaz are Jay and Annie, a married couple who try to spice things up in the bedroom by videotaping themselves. All goes well until Jay forgets to erase the tape and mistakenly stores it on the cloud. "Our sex tape has been synced to several devices," he says, "all of which are in the possession of friends!"

Given how many actors have appeared in sex tapes it's not surprising that several movies have used the raunchy videos as a plot point.

In Brüno, the titular Austrian fashion reporter (Sacha Baron Cohen) tries to make a name for himself in America by making a sex tape with another famous American, U.S. Congressman Ron Paul. Trouble was, Paul wasn't in on the joke. "I was expecting an interview on Austrian economics," said Paul. "But, by the time he started pulling his pants down, I was like 'What is going on here?' I ran out of the room. This interview has ended."

The 2006 comedy Drop Box has production values not unlike that of an actual sex tape but despite its low budget it offers up the funny and often brutal story about Mindy (Rachel Sehl), a big-time bubblegum pop star (think Britney or Miley), who accidentally returns her homemade sex tape to her local video store instead of the movie she rented. Realizing her mistake, she tries to re-rent the tape. It's a character study about a spoiled pop princess who butts heads with an unmovable force in the form of the uncooperative and inquisitive clerk (David Cormican).

Finally, Auto Focus exposes sex tapes' dark side. Hogan's Heroes star Bob Crane's (Greg Kinnear) all-American public persona hid a secret obsession. According to the film, he liked making sex tapes with women, usually without their knowledge. The movie speculates his 1978 murder may have been related to this unlawful pastime.

Sugar skull treat. Book of Life animates Mexican folklore

Guillermo del Toro is helping to open the Book of Life.

The Oscar winner is producing the animated feature by first-time director Jorge Gutierrez, and joined him at Fox Studios on Monday to unveil footage from the film, set for release in October.

Book of Life is rich with imagery from Mexican folk-lore, with a special emphasis on the Day of the Dead, the food- and music-filled celebration of the annual return of the spirits of deceased loved ones.

Del Toro said he was moved by Gutierrez's emotional, visual and narrative connection to Mexico.

Book of Life centres on two best friends angling for the girl of their dreams, not realizing that otherworldly powers have a stake in the outcome. The leaders of the underworlds, the Land of the Remembered and the Land of the Forgotten, make a wager on which lover the girl will choose.

Zoe Saldana, Channing Tatum and Diego Luna lead the voice cast. The film also features ranchera interpretations of popular songs by Mumford & Sons, Radiohead, Rod Stewart and others.

Lohan feels London calling and considers long-term commitment

EHRBAR

Lindsay Lohan is almost officially London's problem, so everybody just keep quiet until she's gone, OK?

The troubled starlet has been living it up across the pond, but now that's she finally scored herself a gig over there, she's eager to make the move permanent, to the relief of drivers and nightclub patrons across the U.S.

"I have a great place. It's very light and I feel safe," Lohan tells the Daily Express. "I think I am making the move to come over here.

Lohan starts her run on the West End stage later this year, and she's already looking to head off speculation that she'll flake out on work.

"I'm at a place in my life where I like the commitment. I'm looking forward to that part of it," she says.

You go, girl. No, really.

Beyoncé and Jay-Z are On the Run with a marriage counsellor

Jay-Z and Beyoncé reportedly have added a new member to their summer tour entourage: A marriage counsellor - well, virtually at least.

Sources tell the Daily Mirror that the married moguls have been meeting with a therapist via Skype while on the road to keep their relationship on course.

"It might sound drastic but, in America especially, counselling is fairly standard practice," a source says.

"They have known their therapist for a long time and try to have weekly sessions just to keep communication open and make sure there are no misunderstandings. It's about maintenance rather than trying to fix anything hugely wrong.'

Welcome to the world's tallest waterslide. What's it like hurtling down a water track at over 100 km/hr? Read on!

Halfway up the 264 stairs leading to the top of the world's tallest waterslide, it is clear this is the most breathtaking ride you'll ever encounter.

And that's before you ever step foot in the raft.

Two-thirds of the way up the circular stairs is a sign that says you've reached the height of the Statue of Liberty.

A few dozen more steps and you've reached the level of Niagara Falls — and the relief that despite being a little light-headed, you're going to make it to the top of the ride called "Verrückt" — German for "insane."

From a distance, the waterslide at the edge of Schlitterbahn Waterpark, about 25 kilometres west of downtown Kansas City, Mo., doesn't look so scary.

Even from just below the 51-metre structure, it's easy to dismiss the steepness of the first plunge if you've not been to the top watched nervously as the gate opens and your raft starts creeping to the

Once riders reach the top platform, where they will climb aboard the raft, each team of riders steps onto another scale and is weighed again.

It isn't until you stand on the platform waiting for your heart to stop pounding that you begin to get a little anxious about boarding the raft - the same kind that during testing just weeks earlier had lifted

Family adventure memories

Disneyland may not be cutting it anymore. The trend toward more experiential holidays has Mom and Dad think ing further outside the box. Some parents are skipping vacation years to save up for the larger adventures every other year — the safari, the wilderness adventure or the camping trip in a foreign land. The term "memory making" is big with tour operators, who are busy phasing in custom-made kids clubs with programs that engage the children so parents can relax or do grownup things. These marketers are also taking into account multigenerational needs and wants, so Gram and Gramps can come, too.

The highways running north and south in Alberta get an awful lot of attention.

There's the main artery of the province, the Queen Elizabeth II, or what many still stubbornly call Highway 2, that links Edmonton and Calgary and beyond. A little further west, the Cowboy Trial hugs the eastern slopes of the Rockies from Mayerthorpe all the way down to Cardston. Further west still, in the mountains, Highway 93, or the Icefields Parkway, runs between Jasper and Lake Louise and attracts loads of tourists to see the peaks and marvel at the

But there are just as many marvels along the gorgeous east/west David Thompson Highway and it doesn't get as many accolades - or as much traffic - which means you can enjoy an open road, easy drive and spectacular views - not to mention brushing up on a little Alberta history. The highway, also known as Highway 11, starts east of Red Deer and runs west through Rocky Mountain House, past Nordegg and then alongside the impossibly long Abraham Lake to finally deliver you to the spot where fur traders used to cross the river, aptly called Saskatchewan River Crossing, at Highway 93.

The highway is named after David Thompson, the great geographer, explorer and adventurer, and the first white man to see Calgary. He was born poor in England and sent to Canada to work with the Hudson's Bay Company in 1784. He useď Rocky Mountain House as a base to explore into B.C. and you can still see the remains of four trading posts that date back to 1799 at the Rocky Mountain House National Historic Site. As the prairie turns lazily into foothills, roll into Rocky Mountain House for a coffee at Tim Hortons, check out hand-woven fabrics at Cloth of Kin, or go for a hike.

Further west, you'll find the town of Nordegg, which was named for Martin Nordegg, a German adventurer and mining engineer who discovered rich coal deposits on the eastern slopes of the Rockies in 1907. Between 1911 and 1955, the Brazeau Collieries Minesite produced more than 10 million tons of coal, a major industry that attracted immigrant miners from Europe, par-ticularly Italy. Not only does the National Historic Site in Nordegg offer guided tours of this largely intact mine, the museum has a fabulous café with home cooking and beautiful pies.

Just down the road, Abraham Lake's turquoise waters will keep you company for 30-plus kilometres toward the Icefields Parkway. The lake was created in the North Saskatchewan River in 1972 when the provincial government built the Big Horn Dam. Schoolchildren across the province were asked to submit names for the biggest man-made lake in Alberta and the winning entry was for Silas Abraham, a Stony Indian guide who helped Nordegg and other explorers in the early 1900s.

As you drive the David Thompson Highway, turning the music up and the air conditioning down, it's hard not to think of what Thompson saw 200 years ago.

"He mapped more of North America than any other cartographer filling in the great spaces of the northwest," writes Aritha Van Herk in Mavericks, An Incorrigible History of Alberta. "He is still a silent presence behind every map published by the Canadian government, some part of each deriving from Thompson's work.

And while there is "no portrait of Thompson, no monument to him," there is a certain irony to the fact that this "brilliant surveyor" who mapped much of Alberta by walking, canoeing or riding a horse, has his name posted along a quiet but stunning highway that's known as the road less travelled.

The David Thompson Highway starts east of Red Deer and runs west to Saskatchewan River Crossing. KEVIN M KLERKS/FLICKR PHOTOS

Give veggies kid appeal by adding spaghetti

Salad Spotlight. Metro's third day in a weeklong lightening of your plate includes grilled fresh vegetables bursting with summer flayour

Gardens are brimming with vegetables that are ready to be picked and grilled to enjoy in every way possible.

If you don't have a garden full of veggies, be sure to head to the farmer's market to pick up some of these delicious ingredients.

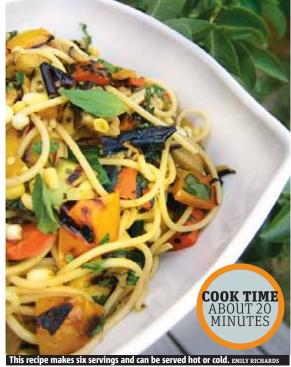

It is a special time of year when we can see and smell all the wonders that grow around us. Fresh herbs are in abundance as well, so feel free to add extra to enjoy that summer flavour.

Using spaghetti for this pasta salad gives it a fun kid appeal while adults will love the colour and flavour of the grilled vegetables.

You can enjoy this salad warm or cold. If you love vinegar, add an extra splash before serving it cold.

1. In a pot of boiling water, cook spaghetti for about 8 minutes or until al dente. Drain and rinse with cold water. Drain well and place in large bowl.

- 2. In another large bowl, toss sliced carrots, sliced eggplant, quartered orange and yellow pepper and sliced zucchini with oil to coat.
- 3. Place on greased grill with cobs of corn over medium high heat for about 10 minutes, turning once or until tender and golden.
- 4. When they have cooled enough to handle, place all of the grilled vegetables on a cutting board and cut them into bite-size pieces. Add the vegetables to the bowl of spaghetti.
- 5. In bowl, whisk the vinegar, vegetable broth, pesto and freshly ground black pepper. Pour over the vegetable and spaghetti mixture, add fresh basil and toss to coat evenly.

Ingredients

- 4 oz (125 g) spaghetti, broken in smaller pieces
- 2 carrots, sliced lengthwise
- 1 eggplant (about 1 lb/454 g), sliced lengthwise
- 1 each orange and yellow pepper, quartered
- 1 zucchini, sliced lengthwise
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) canola oil
- 2 cobs of corn, husked
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) apple cider or balsamic vinegar
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) vegetable broth • 1 tbsp (15 ml) prepared basil
- Pinch freshly ground black pepper
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) chopped fresh basil

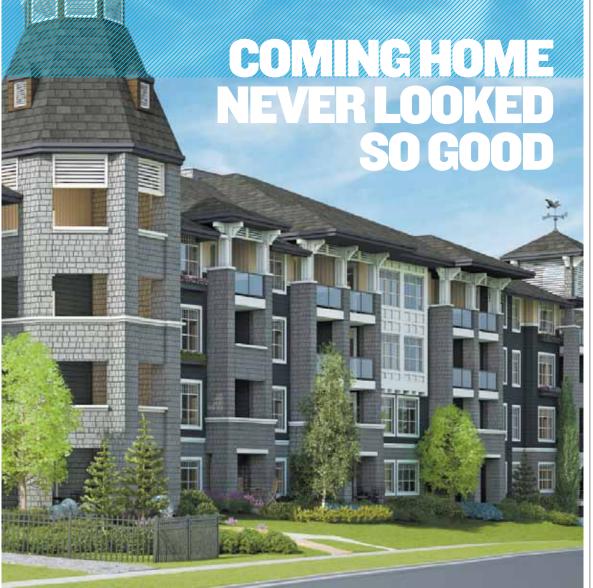

Cooking tips

Here is a way to make this salad work for you.

Grilling technique.
 When grilling vegetables, be sure to have a clean, well-greased grill and monitor the heat.
 You know your barbecue, so if it runs hot at medium-high be sure to turn it to medium for this recipe so you don't have charred vegetables. The flavour is more appealing with that hint of smokiness and it's also a healthier option!

• Take it to go. This is a great choice for a picnic.

Meet mentors from many miles away

E-nspiration. Students in the far North get guidance from experts all over the country through an e-mentoring program

Every Thursday afternoon, Ryerson University professor Beau Standish would get an email from a teenager in a classroom in Whitehorse, picking his brains from 4,000 kilometres away about careers in science and engin-

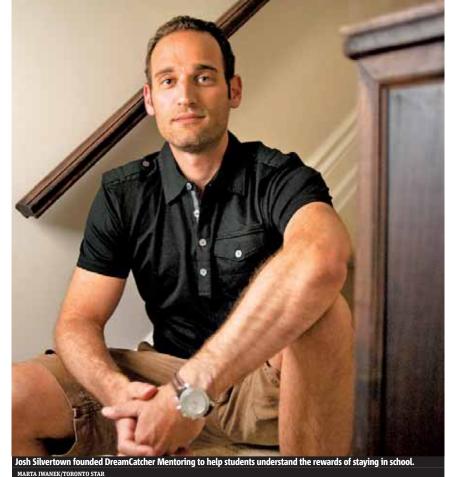

Later, after the medical biophysicist tucked his own kids into bed, he would respond with all the facts and fervour expected of any good mentor.

Call him an e-mentor.

Standish is one of more than 800 Canadian professionals who have offered to give long-distance career tips and encouragement to some of Canada's most far-flung north ern students through a non-profit program called DreamCatcher Mentoring. president and CEO and Renney emerged as serious candidate, the 59-year-old didn't put on a masquerade.

"(Business is) not where his passion lies," Team Canada coach Mike Babcock said. "And it's not where his expertise lies. One thing about Tom: he knows what he is and he knows what he's not." Renney, above all else, is a respected hockey man, and his decades of experience at the amateur, international and professional levels ultimately made him Hockey Canada's choice to replace Bob Nicholson.

What separated Renney from other candidates, board of directors chairman Jim Hornell said, were his values base, his connections throughout the sport and his passion to grow the game.

"He's a people person, he connects well, he communicates well with people and certainly he's recognized not only in Canada but throughout the hockey world, and that's important," Hornell said on a conference call Tuesday. "It's important that we have someone who is knowledgeable in hockey but who is also recognized in hockey and can bring a team together."

B.C. running back Andrew Harris is the CFL's top offensive player and top Canadian for Week 3 after his big game helped the Lions beat the Saskatchewan Roughriders 26-13.

Edmonton Eskimos defensive tackle Almondo Sewell was named the top defensive player, while Calgary Stampeders kick returner Jock Sanders was awarded the week's special teams honour.

The Flyin' Hawaiian will be grounded for this week, and probably longer.

Toronto receiver Chad Owens will miss the Argonauts' game in Ottawa on Friday with a left-foot injury, and the team believes he will be out a minimum of three weeks.

That leaves the Argos with very little veteran depth at receiver. Slotback Andre Durie is out with a broken clavicle, and wide receiver Jason Barnes is sidelined with a knee injury.

MLB. Yankees shortstop leads AL to win in his final all-star game

Derek Jeter soaked in the adulation from fans and players during one more night on baseball's national stage, set the tone for the American League with a pre-game speech and delivered two final all-star hits.

Mike Trout, perhaps the top candidate to succeed the 40-year-old Yankees captain as the face of the game, seemed ready to assume the role with a tiebreaking triple and later a go-ahead double that earned him MVP honours.

On a summer evening filled with reminders of generational change, the AL kept up nearly two decades of dominance by beating the National League 5-3 in the all-star game Tuesday for its 13th win in 17 years.

Miguel Cabrera homered to help give the AL champion home-field advantage for the World Series.

He received a 63-second standing ovation when he walked to the plate leading off the bottom of the first, another rousing cheer when he led off the third and about two minutes of applause after AL manager John Farrell sent Alexei Ramirez to shortstop to replace him at the start of the fourth.

2014 Lincoln MKZ Hybrid

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel drive midsize luxury sedan
- Engines (hp). 2.0-litre inline four-cylinder gasoline engine and 88 kW electric motor (approximately 188 combined)
- Transmission. CVT automatic
- Base price. (incl. destination).

Market position

A very fuel-efficient and high-tech midsize luxury sedan. Ford says the reimagining of the Lincoln brand has it positioned to appeal to a younger and more 'culturally progressive" type of luxury customer; the type, for example, that would prefer a more personalized and understated "W" hotel stay over a more ostentatious luxury hotel experience.

Points

- Second model-year for current-generation version. Based on CD4 platform also under Ford Fusion.
- No premium charged for hybrid model. Same base price as gasoline-powered MKZ.
- More powerful lithium-ion battery pack translates to more electrical thrust and the ability to downsize gasoline engine to 2.0 litres (from 2.5 litres), for even better fuel efficiency (4.2 L/100 km

Safety

Eight standard air bags; available inflatable rear outboard safety belts; electronic stability control with Curve Control; four wheel disc brakes with ABS; available back up camera, adaptive cruise control with collision warning and brake support, active park assist, lane keeping system and auto high-beam headlights; tire pressure monitoring system.

Entry-level luxury, top-shelf fuel economy

Review. Lincoln's MKZ Hybrid takes a different path to luxury

MIKE GOETZ

It's hard to feel sorry for an inanimate object, especially for something as neat-oh and cool looking as this sophisticated 2014 Lincoln MKZ Hybrid.

But whomever I met with this Lincoln during my week with it seemed to address it with a smidgeon of something like discrimination - an everso-slightly turned up nose, if you will. They weren't sold on the idea of a Lincoln as a premium automotive brand, and they wondered why hybrids are still being propagated as a desirable technology, especially in a luxury automobile.

Well, after my week, that dual underdog aspect of the Lincoln was just another thing that endured me to this luxury hybrid. It's far from perfect, but overall it's a great ride, with great looks and super fuel economy - 4.2 L/100 km city and

A new and powerful lithiumion battery pack meant Lincoln could upgrade the electrical motivation and move to a smaller (2.0-litre) gasoline engine.

Though it launches well, the combined 188 horsepower is not going to win you many street races. But to those of you who don't necessarily equate luxury with the zoom factor, you'll be perfectly happy motoring around, especially if your priority is fuel economy and/ or not having a big ecological Yes, all Lincolns are based on a Ford. But Ford is making decent stuff these days. MKZ is based on the Ford Fusion and both exhibit excellent handling characteristics. As a Lincoln.

MKZ also benefits from a system called Lincoln Drive Control, which continually adjusts the suspension, the electric power steering feel and ratio, and a noise-suppression tech-

Note, however, that the MKZ is prioritized for spirited handling. The ride is surprisingly firm and controlled - it's not a couch on wheels like Lincolns of yore.

I thought the steering become too light, too fast when braking to stop, but otherwise the Drive Control was unobtru-

The bigger caveat is the finicky nature of the touch-sensitive sliders and buttons on the instrument panel. It takes too much brainpower to do simple things like tune the radio and turn the fan down. (I know rotary knobs don't look or feel high-techy, but you know what? THEY WORK.)

The distinctive way the rear of the cabin is styled is an acquired taste. It also makes ingress and egress and the rear seating area a bit smaller than it might have been. But I love the way the front of the car looks.

Bamboo better than carbon fibre?

Even before it has really taken off as a deeply ingrained construction material in mass-production automobiles, carbon fibre's day might already have come and gone ... eclipsed by bamboo. California surfboard manufacturer Gary Young argues that with the right approach, bamboo can be used in many applications in the auto industry "where its performance qualities can better carbon fibre's." He told Britain's BBCAutos.com that bamboo fiber is in most cases just as strong as carbon, much cheaper to buy and more environment friendly. Hailed for its incredible light weight and strength, carbon fibre is still expensive to make in large pieces and quantities, requires copious energy to manufacture, is not recyclable and uses toxic chemicals in its production. More frugal Ferraris will maintain performance

Having curbed its fleet-wide carbon dioxide emissions by almost 40 per cent since 2007, Ferrari says it figures it can achieve a further 20 per cent reduction by 2021, using primarily smaller engines with turbocharging and hybrid technologies. "We want to use all the available technologies to reduce emissions by three per cent each year, which means approximately 20 per cent by 2021," Ferrari powertrain director Vittorio Dini told industry reporter Automotive News recently. Ferrari will add turbochargers to all of its V8 models and gas-electric hybrid systems to all of its V12s. None of that will make a difference in the big picture — Ferrari sold 7,318 cars in 2012 — but it's good to see the automaker's storied engineering muscle contribute to the cause.

Shift points

- BMW expects to be building 100,000 electric cars a year by 2020. Management board chairman Norbert Reithofer told Automotive News that plug-in vehicle production would steadily increase by 2018 before hitting full stride at the end of the decade.
- Honda announced that Californians interested in buying its Civic Natural Gas model will be eligible for a $1,000 US credit at any certified Honda Natural Gas dealer.
- Hyundai delivered its first Tucson fuel-cell-powered vehicle to a family in Southern California in mid-June. Hyundai will initially offer the Tucson Fuel Cell on a lease program to customers in the Los Angeles/Orange County areas, where it has approved six stations with appropriate hydrogen fuel pumps.

Redesigns, improvements keep vehicles fresh

Driving Force. It's a delicate balance of changing it enough to make a difference, while remaining familiar enough for loyal fans

JIL MCINTOSH

It takes a great deal of time, work, and money to redesign a car, but even as a new model comes to market, auto companies are busy updating it

"The competition is fierce," says Kevin Hunter, president of Calty Design Research, Toyota's design studio in California. "But we always have to consider the customer when we 'move the needle."

Generally, brand-new models are introduced, "refreshed" about halfway through their life cycle, and then completely redesigned again as all-new. In the past, the refresh would usually be minor and take a few years, but many automakers are now updating their models sooner, and more extensively, to stay competitive. Hunter's team has sent out a Toyota Camry for 2015 that uses the 2014 model's platform and engine, but with radically updated interior and exterior styling.

Refreshed styling is actually far more difficult than creating a car from scratch, Hunter says, because designers have to work within the constraints of the current car, including its overall size, shape, and interior configuration. At the same time, the redesign has to be extensive enough that buyers can tell at a glance that the vehicle's been changed.

Even as they alter the car's appearance, designers have to maintain the integrity of the original engineering. Altering the vehicle's aerodynamics can negatively affect its fuel economy, while new curves or shapes have to meet the realities of mass production, and any changes to the steering or suspension must be extensively tested.

Automakers don't take redesigns lightly, as they're very expensive. In addition to the costs of design and engineering, production facilities have to be retooled to make the new parts, and suppliers have to accommodate the updated designs.

A redesigned model also goes through the same launch process as an all-new model. The company has to produce new advertising and commercials, print new brochures and sales material for its dealers, update its website, and present the car to the media. Toyota says that most mainstream-model customers only spend about 30 days deciding which car to buy, and the company has to focus on advertising until there are enough of the new models on the road that these customers

- Automakers also have to balance price: a very low price looks enticing, but it can drive down resale value, which can affect sales.

- Cars are often updated with improved safety or fuel economy technologies as they become available.

realize the car they knew before has been changed.

"We start on the next one as soon as (the current one) hits the showrooms," Hunter says. "We always try to go as far as we can, without getting so radical that the customer may not appreciate it."

Pay more attention to your career over the next few weeks. What is it you are best at and what brings out your special creativity? Do that to the exclusion of everything else.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Stand back from money matters and see your life from a wider perspective. There are many types of wealth and the most important of all is to be rich in knowledge — and love.

You'll find it easier to get your point of view across. Even nicer is that you will discover that loved ones are on your side.

9 Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If you go out of your way to help people your good deeds will come back to you many times over. If, however, you go out of your way to make life difficult for others your own life will be more difficult.

Ω Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You have done many things (some good, others bad) over the past few weeks, because you believed in what you were doing. Because of that, you have no reason to apologize.

The pace of life has been hectic and if you don't take a break you might regret it. There is, though, still enough time for one last effort to complete something important to you.

6 Capricorn

You can feel your confidence beginning to return and by the end of the week you will have forgotten that you ever doubted yourself. Your ability to make things happen is there.

If there is something you need to own up to do so now as Jupiter, planet of good fortune, moves into your opposite sign. Most likely you've worried about it for no good reason.

You will be back to your best in a matter of days but today you must make peace with anyone you have fallen out with. Maybe you were a little harsh on them.
